KOKKOLA & REGION, FINLAND

Finland— life from a different angle

Welcome to the Wild East!

Standing proudly between Sweden and Russia, Finland's Kokkola region is a charming area, with a population of around 70,000.

Kokkola has one of the country's most extensively preserved historical areas of wooden houses; the oldest were built in the 17th century.

The lighthouse island of Tankar is situated in the outer archipelago of the Bay of Bothnia, about 15 km north-west of Kokkola. Locations from decrepit rusting factories to pure nature, and Arctic areas near the sea.

From refreshingly-arctic winters, the magical stillness of the forests, to balmy midsummer—when the sun never sleeps—the magical stories begin in Kokkola.
